Healthy subjects needed for sleep and memory study

Researchers at the NYU School of Medicine are seeking healthy subjects in a study to understand how memory is affected by sleep.

- Subjects will be asked to sleep overnight at an accredited sleep center one night a week for three weeks while EEG is being recorded. Subjects will be given memory tasks before and after each sleep period.

- Subjects must be between 18-30 years of age and fluent in English. Subjects must not have a history of neurologic, psychiatric disorder, or any sleep disorder. No alcohol or drugs 24 hours before each visit. Will be drug tested.

Subjects will be compensated $100 per night for participation plus $100 for completing the study, for a total of $400.
