Your child, _____ is invited to take part in a study named Hiring & Headlines. The study is designed to learn more about how people process information. It is being conducted by Gaëlle Pierre who is the principal investigator, as part of her doctoral dissertation in the department of psychology, Graduate School of Arts & Sciences. The faculty sponsor of this work is Professor David Amodio, of the psychology department.

If you give permission for your child to be in this study, he or she will be asked to do the following: review job applicants and complete a questionnaire as well as review published reports. Your child's participation will take about one hour and your child will be paid $10 for completing this study. When your child completes the study, a thorough verbal and written explanation of it will be given to him/her.

There are no known risks associated with your child's participation in this research beyond those of everyday life. Although your child will receive no direct benefits for participation in this study, it may make him or her more aware of how knowledge is discovered in psychology and help the investigator better understand how information is processed.

Taking part in this study is voluntary. Not taking part or withdrawing after the study has begun will not affect your child's grade or academic standing in any way. If your child withdraws at any time, no payment will be given. Your child has the right to skip or not answer any questions he/she prefers not to answer.

Confidentiality of your child's research records will be strictly maintained by not collecting any identifying information. The data from the study will be kept until 5 years after publication, as recommended by American Psychological Association. When the data are destroyed, all relevant computer files will be deleted and any papers will be shredded.
